BREVE DESCRIZIONE DEL CORSO

The course will tackle the most important aspects of the Roman world and civilisation: economics, family relationship, warfare, religion, slavery, women's condition, and culture in its broader meaning.

PREREQUISITI

The students are expected to possess a general knowledge of the geography of the Mediterranean area and of the most important civilizations that flourished before the Romans.

OBIETTIVI FORMATIVI

At the end of the course the students will be able to appreciate the contribution of the Roman civilisation to the progress of mankind in many fields, such as art, politics, science, law.

METODI DIDATTICI

Lectures will be delivered in presence and will mostly take the form of frontal lessons; however, there will be room for debates and brain-storming sessions on topic particularly stimulating for the students.

MODALITA' D'ESAME

Written test

APPELLI D'ESAME

The exam can be booked online. It will take place in the first half of June (more precise indications will be given in due course)
